

Kelp Forests

The kelp forest is home to many different ocean animals. Just like a forest on land, kelp provides food, shelter, and protection for animals trying to survive. It is the perfect place to hide from predators and at the same time, is a habitat that open-ocean predators will visit looking for food. Each organism has a specific role in the kelp forest and a particular place to live. Color the animals below, cut them out, and then paste where you would find them in the kelp forest on the next page:
